

Planning a Cost-Effective Move

If your plans this summer include a major move, the Better Business Bureau recommends that you do some advance legwork to save yourself frustration, and possibly money. Start planning your move at least six to eight weeks before your targeted moving date. Ask friends or neighbors to recommend companies they have been happy with for past moves, and check out the companies' record with the BBB. Contact each company to ask about its charges and the types of services it offers, and compare movers to determine which one best suits your needs and budget.

See this article from the Better Business Bureau for more information...